DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1, 2, 4 and 5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Owen.

The sleeve is 36, the compartment is 28 and the cushion is 30.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

Claim 3 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Owen as applied to claim 1 above, and further in view of Cassese et al.

The sleeve 32 is configured from a substantially rigid material. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to replace the sleeve of Owen with the rigid sleeve 32 as taught to be old by Cassese et al thereby providing the obvious advantage and predictable result of a more sturdy attachment construction.

Claims 6, 8-16 and 18-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Owen as applied to claim 1 above, and further in view of Goldstein.

Goldstein (Fig. 5) teaches a cover with an attachment to a seat with a compartment 25 for inserting a plurality of shock-absorbing cushions 45, 46, 47 which are formed of various shapes to fill the volume defined by the compartment, and wherein the cushions have different shock absorbing properties from each other (col. 6, line 66-col. 7, line 7). It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to replace the single cushion of Owen with the plurality of cushions as taught to be old by Goldstein thereby providing the obvious advantage and predictable results of greater adaptability to the needs of each individual user.

Claim 7 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Owen as applied to claim 1 above, and further in view of Lacy ('477).

Lacy teaches a compartment 20 detachable from a sleeve 12 to be conventional in the art. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to modify the Owen device such that the compartment were detachable as taught to be old by Lacy thereby providing the obvious advantage and predictable results of more placement options of the compartment relative to the sleeve.

Claim 17 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Owen in view of Goldstein et al as applied to claim 12 above, and further in view of Lacy.

Lacy teaches a compartment 20 detachable from a sleeve 12 to be conventional in the art. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to further modify the Owen device such that the compartment were detachable as taught to be old by Lacy thereby providing the obvious advantage and predictable results of more placement options of the compartment relative to the sleeve.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Volger, Salandy, McNair, Davis, Fergie, O'Sullivan, King, Vadala, Greer, Earl, Harnish, Peterson, Hecht et al, Xiang, Llewellyn, and Watson all teach devices similar to that of the instant invention.
